CALLAWAY FAMILY HOME & GARDEN
"Our group visited this estate and gardens with high expectations, and we were not disappointed. Every detail was managed in perfect fashion, from the restoration/preservation of the home to the lovely gardens. It was not hard to visualize a family growing up in this home, nor the happy sounds of children playing on the grounds. Thanks to the family for sharing their history with the public."

- Trip Advisor Review

The centerpiece of the 35-acre estate is a spectacular 1916 Italian villa built by textile magnate Fuller E. Callaway. The 31 room home is surrounded by a splendid boxwood garden planted in the mid-19th century by Sarah Ferrell. The property has been lovingly preserved by two generations of the Callaway family and is now open for your enjoyment.
From gardening I have learned three things: Patience, Perseverance and Acceptance. I’ve learned patience to wait for the plants to grow... I’ve learned perseverance to try again and to keep trying when something fails... because you will succeed eventually. I’ve learned acceptance, because weather is one of the great deterrents to gardening there is nothing you can do about... So accept it...
